
Contents and Acknowledgements

SECTION	PAGE
Foreword	2
What is Dads Express?	3
Conference programme	4
Dads Dilemma: what we know about dads - Colin Fowler	5
The Good, The Bad and The Myths: what is said about fathers - Jimmy Binns	9
How "The Good, The Bad and The Myths" impact upon the development of fathers' work and fathers themselves	13
"Thank You Daddy"	15
What do I want from Dads Express?	16
What can I offer to Dads Express?	17
Specific interest areas that I would like to follow-up with other people	18
What should the theme for next year's conference be?	19
Feedback from participants	20
Delegate list	24

This event would not have been possible without the huge amount of voluntary input given by members of the Dads Express Planning Group and the agencies within which they work. All those involved were prepared to take a risk with their time, resources, skills and energy, and to be enthusiastic pioneers in a hitherto relatively uncharted area of work.

Special thanks are offered to ...

Derek McCambley from the Community Foundation for Northern Ireland who supported this initiative under the Investing for Healthier Communities Grant.

George Clarke who designed the logo for this event (The Good, The Bad and The Myths).

Trisha McQueen (The Men's Project, Parents Advice Centre) who made sure that all the crucial background work was attended to with maximum efficiency and minimum fuss.

This report was collated for the Planning Group by Colin Fowler of The Men's Project within Parents Advice Centre